

Not all professional athletes enjoy their day in the sun with milestone accomplishments and record-breaking accolades, but in 1972, when Terry Daniels got into the ring with Joe Frazier - the undisputed Heavyweight Champion of the World, 10 months after Frazier won the Fight of the Century against Muhammad Ali - he had over 70 million people witnessing the fight on national TV. Jeff Daniels takes the reader on a journey of love, determination, perseverance and hope. He recounts his big brothers coming-of-age story and his landmark decision - as a senior in college - to compete for the most feared and respected title in professional sports.
